- Help reduce or control the desire or inclination to eat.Also create a feeling of fullness. Overall reduce Carbohydrate intake and absorption.
- Inhibits Carbohydrate being converted to glucose and reduce overall absorption into our body.
- Boost conversion of food to energy to support body functions. Higher metabolism means that the body expends more calories at rest (basal metabolic rate) and during physical activities. This increased is essential for weight loss. In short, it doubles up the calories burned even when you are at rest or when you exercise!
- Reduce overall fats absorbed from the digestive system. Breaks down store fats to produce energy, therefore reducing overall body fat. Reduce fat stored in our body.
